Attn: John Stevenson, Ontario Securities Commission

Dear Mr. Stevenson,

With regard to the proposed changes in securities policies and regulations wherein a particular proposal will require detailed financial information via "know your client" forms become a requirement in order to invest.

I believe there is enough people and organizations looking at our personal information and this information is becoming far too public and is another way for our personal information to be disclosed, exposed and subject to scrutiny by others. It is "my" choice if "I" want to invest a certain type of security and they do not need this information for "me" to make a decision. I do not want some "sales person" deciding whether I should or should not make an investment. If this was the case in doing business, many successful business owners would not be in business today.

I appreciate your time and efforts in taking a common sense approach to this type of proposed change.

Thanking you in advance.
