

Governments have an obligation to health and safety of the people - not to pry into personal affairs.

To require detailed financial information for people investing in "exempt market securities" is OVERSTEPPING" your mandates.

Enough is enough!

Smarten up and govern for the health and safety of the people - physical health and physical safety not pry into people's financial affairs.

If people make dumb mistakes like buying a house way beyond their means or buying a security without due diligence - it is their mistake - no government prying & no government bail-outs!
