I object to the proposal regarding exempt market securities. I do not think an individual's investment possibilities should be determined by a third party based on personal financial information. As an investor, you invest at your own risk, and as long as you are advised of risks in a particular investment, then surely it is up to the prospective investor to make the decision to invest or not on their own, without being required to divulge all personal financial information to a sales person and then have the decision whether or not they can invest made by someone else.
