

Dear Mr Stevenson and Honorable Iris Evans,

I am emailing to comment on the proposal to Change the regulations regarding investments.

As an investor, I object that I would be required to show my detailed financial information to someone in order to make an investment. I already need to check off the category that I fall into that enables me to qualify for particular investment.

My financials are no one's business but my own. The government already has tax records and knows all they need to know about my financial situation.

Enough already for making it difficult for people to be in charge of their financial future!

Sincerely,
Cheryl Crabtree
