

Dear John Stevenson,
Dear Honorable Iris Evans,

I have been made aware that the Canadian Securities Administrators are proposing new tighter regulations.

As I understand if that would get in effect it would mean that I as an investor would have to reveal more personal information like net worth, assets, liabilities, risk tolerance, income and so forth.

I do believe I have to give already enough of my personal information out, so I am not at all for more personal information to hand out.

I would appreciate if you could tell what this is for and it would not benefit me at all.

Thank you for looking into this matter.

With best regards

Fritz Wagner
