Dear Ms. Beaudoin:

Re: CSA Notice and Request for Comment re MI 62-104 Take-Over Bids and Issuer Bids, NI 62-103 Early Warning System and NP 62-203 Take-Over Bids and Issuer Bids (#4411223 v6)

On behalf of Crescent Point Energy Corp, a company listed on the TSX, we support the recommendations noted below as included in the letter from the Canadian Investor Relations

Institute dated July 9, 2013 responding to the above referenced CSA Notice and Request for Comment.

CIRI recommends that the CSA:

- lower the beneficial ownership threshold under the Early Warning System to five percent (5%) from 10 percent (10%);
- include equity equivalent derivatives and securities lending positions in the Early Warning System threshold calculation;
- require disclosure of share ownership when shareholders fall below the Early Warning System threshold;
- require beneficial owners to disclose if there are subsequent one percent (1%) incremental increases or decreases in the share ownership;
- require that these disclosures be made before trading hours commence the following business day; and
- consider a future review of the Alternative Monthly Reporting system.

As a publicly listed issuer in Canada we support and encourage increased disclosure. The recommendations made by CIRI provide meaningful information about share ownership positions that may affect control of issuers, information that all market participants are entitled to. The adoption of these recommendations would improve the transparency and efficiency of the Canadian capital market.

Sincerely,

Trent Stangl
