

Dear legislators:

I am on holiday abroad until after the deadline to submit letters opposing the stringent changes to the regulations on investments. I cannot compose a properly detailed letter since I have only an iPad mini and variably poor internet services. I do want my voice heard saying I oppose the new restrictions on my freedom to invest and to design an individualized portfolio. I have done better with the type of investments you are proving to restrict than I have done with stocks and bonds managed by professional wealth management consultants! And we all know the 2008 story. I have high praises for the firms I have invested with that you would plan to restrict and, I do not want the government restricting my choices as proposed.

Thank you for listening,
Judy Schmidt

Sent from my iPad